

Press Release

The newly-established Montgomery County Public Defender's Office (MCPDO) seeks dedicated professionals to serve in a variety of legal and administrative roles. Under the direction of Public Defender Aylia McKee, the Office will implement a comprehensive, client-centered approach to criminal defense work that extends beyond the courtroom. This effort will require investigators, social workers, client advocates, and mitigation experts, in addition to trial lawyers, paralegals, and administrative assistants.

All positions are located in downtown Montgomery and offer the benefits package available through the State of Alabama. Persons interested in joining a team of professionals who are dedicated to providing high quality representation to indigent defendants should visit the 'News' link on the website for the Montgomery County Courts at www.15jc.alacourt.gov.
